

IAEE Members' Code of Conduct

Preamble

The International Association for Energy Economics is an independent, non-profit, global membership organization for business, government, academic and other professionals concerned with energy and related issues in the international community. We advance the knowledge, understanding and application of economics across all aspects of energy and foster communication amongst energy concerned professionals.

We facilitate

- Worldwide information flow and exchange of ideas on energy issues
- High quality research
- Development and education of students and energy professionals

We accomplish this through

- Providing leading edge publications and electronic media
- Organizing international and regional conferences
- Building networks of energy concerned professionals

The IAEE Code of Conduct

This IAEE Code of Conduct outlines principles for all IAEE members to adhere to and uphold as well as specific types of conduct that are either required or prohibited. Violations of the IAEE Code of Conduct may result in disciplinary action. The IAEE calls upon its members to follow high ethical standards relating to integrity and respect for the rights, dignity, and diversity of others.

Although this Code of Conduct provides standards of conduct for many situations, it does not cover all possible situations that may arise. Accordingly, all members are expected to conduct themselves in a manner consistent with the spirit and letter of this Code of Conduct and to avoid even the appearance of improper behavior. This Code of Conduct may be amended at any time by majority vote of the IAEE Council.

Core Values and Principles

The following section provides examples of both acceptable and unacceptable behavior.

Integrity

IAEE members must uphold intellectual honesty. Plagiarism, in any form, is unacceptable and is a breach of professional conduct.

“Plagiarism means to steal and pass off (the ideas or words of another) as one’s own. To use (another’s production) without crediting the source.” -Merriam-Webster Dictionary

Submissions of written materials to IAEE may undergo electronic web-based analysis to ensure their originality and to identify possible cases of plagiarism. Submitting documents to IAEE publications implies that the authors grant permission that such analyses may be performed.

Obligations to Respect Law and Privacy

IAEE members must respect the rights of others and agree not to upload, post, e-mail, transmit, or otherwise make available any content that (i) infringes any copyright, trademark, or other proprietary rights of any person or entity; (ii) is threatening, tortious, defamatory, libelous, indecent, obscene, pornographic, invasive of another’s privacy, or promotes violence; or (iii) discloses any personal information about another person, including that person’s name, e-mail address, postal address, phone number, credit card information, or any similar information, without the prior written consent of the person whose personal information will be disclosed.

Respect for the rights, dignity, and diversity of others

IAEE members are expected to refrain from verbally or electronically harassing, threatening, or abusing any person, other member or IAEE staff. Additionally, members shall take care to not falsely demean the reputation or unjustly or unfairly criticize the work or character of other members or IAEE.

IAEE promotes environments that value respect, fairness and integrity. Disruptive behavior at association functions or events, such as creating noise or other disturbances to intentionally unsettle participants, will not be tolerated. While substantive dialogue, including potential disagreements, concerning the analysis and conclusions of the work of other members relevant to energy economics is not only tolerated but encouraged, members must strictly avoid letting such dialogue or disagreements become personally critical or disparaging. All members deserve to be treated professionally and respectfully by other members, regardless of their views on contested or controversial matters.

IAEE Intellectual property

IAEE members may not use IAEE logos, copyrighted IAEE materials, or the IAEE membership list in any way that suggests IAEE endorses products, positions, or events without formal authorization from the IAEE Executive Director. Without the prior approval of the IAEE Executive Director, the IAEE member list may not be used (i) to collect contact information for bulk postal mail or bulk email purposes, whether commercial, political, or otherwise; (ii) to solicit money or property; or (iii) for any commercial purpose other than to promote IAEE conferences or to disseminate papers and articles that might be published in IAEE's journals. Copyright ownership for many works published by the IAEE belongs to others, usually to individual members. If permission to use such material is desired, it must be sought from the copyright owner.

Nonpartisanship and Impartiality

IAEE is a non-partisan, independent, apolitical association of professionals whose work is vital for the understanding of the economic context of public policy issues related to energy, and members are encouraged to make clear the political implications of their work. However, IAEE as an association takes no positions on political issues and never endorses political positions or candidates. Therefore, members shall not claim that IAEE either supports or opposes any public policy position, or takes other actions that could create the appearance that IAEE has endorsed or validated any political position, nor attribute a political position to IAEE based on the work of other members or authors in IAEE publications and conferences.

Reporting Code of Conduct Violations

Any allegation of member misconduct in violation of this Code of Conduct shall be directed to the IAEE President. Upon receipt of the allegation, the President shall review the complaint and if he/she determines the complaint has merit, he or she shall forward the complaint to the Committee on Member Conduct for further review and action.

Following the Committee's collection and review of the relevant data, documentation, and, if it deems necessary, testimony, the Committee shall vote to determine if the IAEE Member has violated the Code of Conduct. In the event the majority of the Committee members find that a violation of the Code of Conduct has occurred, the Committee shall make a recommendation on the action to be taken, subject to a separate majority vote, from among the range of actions authorized below.

The Committee Chair shall write a report addressed to the IAEE Council, the IAEE member against whom the complaint was filed, and the complainant, detailing the findings of the Committee and its recommended action, within three (3) weeks of the Committee reaching a final determination. The accused member may provide a written response to the findings and recommendation of the Committee, which must be provided to the IAEE for distribution to the Council at least two (2) weeks prior to its next meeting. Upon his or her request, the complainant shall have the right to address the Council, however the recommendation of the Committee shall constitute the matter before the Council. Upon request of the accused member at least two (2) weeks prior to the next meeting of the Council, the accused member shall be given an opportunity to be heard by the Council at that meeting.

The IAEE Council shall review the report from the Committee Chair at its next meeting, hear any testimony offered by the accused member, and vote on the action to apply to the IAEE member against whom the complaint was filed. A two-thirds (2/3) affirmative vote of the entire Council shall be required to take action. The IAEE Council is under no obligation to accept the recommendation of the Committee but may impose a lesser or greater action at its discretion.

The Committee Chair shall then provide written notice to the IAEE member against whom the complaint was filed and to the complainant detailing what action, if any, is to be taken by the IAEE Council in response to the complaint.

The IAEE Council, shall have the sole authority to levy actions imposed herein for violation of this Code of Conduct. The member agrees not to appeal any decision to any court of law or other party. Nothing herein shall be construed as limiting any party's rights to seek a judicial remedy for any claim or damages such person may have against an IAEE member in that member's individual capacity, but seeking or renewing membership in the IAEE constitutes that individual's formal agreement to abide by this Code of Conduct, to accept as final any determination reached by the Council, and to waive any right to bring legal action for claims or damages against the IAEE or any person acting for the IAEE in his or her capacity as an officer, Council member, staff person, editor, manager, counsel, volunteer, member of the Committee, or in another recognized role, in the enforcement of this Code of Conduct.

Actions relating to Violations

Violations of the IAEE Code of Conduct may subject a member to written reprimand, suspension of membership for up to 1 year, or expulsion from IAEE. IAEE reserves the right to seek legal remedies from members responsible for violations that have caused demonstrable damages or financial losses to the Association.

Conditions for readmission following expulsion, if any, will be stated in the notice of expulsion.
